TO GO DEEPER IN OIL QUEST

STOCKHOLDERS IN QUITMAN COMPANY WON'T QUIT.

TO RAISE $2,000 MORE

Drilling to Continue to 1,800 Foot Depth If Necessary—Early Showings of Oil Cited.

By action of the stockholders of the Quitman Gas and Oil Company, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the oil rig, west of Maryville, drilling will be resumed tomorrow on well No. 2 from the 1358 foot depth, where it stopped last week.

Some twenty-five stockholders, meeting with E. C. Blood, of Woodward, Okla., put twenty more shares of $100 each on the market and twelve were spoken for by last night.

The selling of the twenty shares will enable the company to drill to at least an 1800-foot depth, which is slightly greater than the depth reached on well No. 1.

Well No. 2, which is located on the Joe Carden farm, nine miles west and a half mile north of Maryville, has given two good showings of oil, and is now filled with 1100 feet of salty water.

A showing of oil was found in sand at the 1301-foot depth and again at 1332 feet. Mr. Blood, who came from Woodward, Okla., especially for the meeting of the stockholders yesterday, told the shareholders he thought oil would be found between the present depth and 1450 feet.

He brought with him his instrument for testing for oil ,which is known as the "doodle-bug." He explained the working of the instrument and also the formation of the land where well No. 2 is located. Mr. Blood said that around Woodward several wells were drilled to depths where salty water was struck, then abandoned. It was no until the wells were drilled below the depths where the water rushed in the well that oil was found in several wells, one bringing in 1100 barrels.

G. H. Rose, drilling contractor, who has established his residence in Maryville, said this morning he expected to resume drilling tomorrow morning.

C. G. McMillen Acting Pickering Postmaster

Former Holder of Office Named Temporarily to Succeed Theron Wray. —Moved to New Location.

C. G. McMillen, a former postmaster at Pickering, today took charge of the Pickering office as acting postmaster succeeding Theron Wray, who has occupied that office for fourteen years. The appointment of Mr. McMillen was received several days ago but the change was delayed until today so that it might be made on the first of the month.

The postoffice in Pickering is being moved today from the former Dr W. M. Wallis office and residence to the McMillen building, located across the alley from the Bank of Pickering.

Mr. McMillen will serve until a regular appointment is made. A civil service examination has been called and is to be held soon.

Mr. McMillen was postmaster at Pickering from 1890 to 1893. He was again appointed and served from 1897 to 1908. This is his third time to serve in that office.

Pickering is a fourth class postoffice.

48 ENROLL IN BIBLE SCHOOL

NUMBER IS EXPECTED TO GROW, AS IT DID LAST YEAR.

IT'S SUPERVISED PLAY

Children, While Being Amused, Learn Useful Things at Vacation Classes Started Today.

"What is the greatest book in the world?"

Twenty-five young voices respond in unison—"The Bible."

"How many books in the Bible?"

Again the voices answer, "Sixty-six."

And that is a sample of the Daily Vacation Bible School, which is being held at the Washington School. Enrollment for the Bible school started yesterday and already forty-eight Maryville children have signed up and are attending.

But they do other things at the school too. They sing songs, and play like butterflies and cut out pictures—and have more fun! You ought to be there!

Twenty-five of the dearest tots comprise the primary department. Miss Hilda Denny who has ability at training children, is in charge of this section. The children learn songs and are taught to do useful things in a way that seems like play.

"Someone called this supervised play,—and that's just what it is." Mrs. Leonard Bosch, principal of the school, declared today.

The school is divided into three sections, primary, junior and intermediate.

Last year the school started with an enrollment of 40 and grew to about 100. Mrs. Bosch said. This year the attendance numbered 48 today, the first day of classes.

The school starts at 9 o'clock and lasts until 11:30 o'clock. Music, memory work and handwork are stressed. The children are instructed and interested the entire time the school is held.

The children who have signed up to attend the school are:

Primary, May Louise Hartness, Barbara Lee, Constance Jones, Mary Elizabeth Ford, Barbara Jane Dewar, Frank Baker, jr., Helen Ramey, Vandilla Wood, Edward Bird, George Youngmark, Marian Davis, Hazel Jones, Marjorie Mae Fisher, Beverly Carpenter, Mildred Mayes, Hazel Marie Reynolds, Lea Heltzel, Mabel Virginia Borchers, Myrtle Louise McClain, Eleanor Hartness, Janice Gray, Billy Hull, John Lewis Hartness, Willard Lewis Ford, Billy Dewar, Buddy Jones, Mary Jane Jones, Norma Lee Ramey and Margaret Baker.

Anna Frances and Hazel Mae, two tiny tots enrolled at the school, did not know their last names.

Those in the junior and intermediate departments are: Norvell Lewis Smith, Roland Cornell, Eugene Dillon, Robert Frazer, Frank Spencer, Billy Edwards, jr., Belva Warner, Eula Jones, Marian Musgrave, Helen Jones, Virginia Watt, Meredith Milliken, Veva Heltzel, Maxine Butler, Ralph Bratcher, Harold Davis and Herman Heltzel.

Those in charge of the school are anxious that other Maryville children take advantage of the opportunity and attend the classes. Tuition is free, but those who can are asked to take out a $1 "scholarship."

NO DAMAGES ON NEW ROAD

COMMISSIONERS FILE REPORT ON CARR BRIDGE PROJECT.

OLD ROUTE OFTEN BAD

Opening Of 110 Rods Of New Highway Is Asked, East And South Of Maryville. — Cost About $800.

Three commissioners, appointed by the county court, who viewed the proposed location of a new road for approximately 110 rods east of the Carr bridge, have filed a report with Fred Wright, county clerk, refusing to allow damages for the property owners whose land will be converted into right-of-way.

The commissioners, A. M. Hazleton of Burlington Junction, M. J. Oliver of Guilford, and George Ulmer, jr., of Hopkins, with Joseph Reese, county highway engineer, viewed the proposed highway yesterday for the purpose of assessing the benefits or damages which might result from a new road being opened.

The proposed road starts from a point three miles east and three miles south of Maryville, and extends west approximately 110 rods to the Carr bridge. It has been roughly estimated that the cost of opening the road would be $800.

The proposition to open this road was brought to the attention of the county court by persons living along Rural Route No. 5, who petitioned the court to open a road because of the frequently impassable condition of the route at present designated for the mail carrier to travel. This winter and spring a portion of the route was discontinued because of the bad road.

The next step will be the acceptance of the report of the commissioners by the county court. If no exceptions are filed by property owners, the court will order a road to be opened. The petition seeks a road to be established through the land belonging to the I. J. Crossan estate, E. J. Williams estate and Fred Carr.

The petitioners were:

E. O. Goodspeed, Herman Heitman, Frank Meyer, Jas. B. Robinson, H. M. Souers, Francis O'Dougherty, Thomas W. Greeley, C. H. Ashford, Henry Wilmes, R. A. Pittsenbarger, Elmer Froyd, Floyd Ambrose, Frank Gwinn, A. P. Kidder, Cecil Stewart, Dale Stewart, Joe Meyer, W. L. Kidd and H. A. Coulter.

WHITE HOUSE OPEN TO MRS. LINDBERGH

Mrs. Coolidge Extends Invitation to "Another Schoolma-am" for Flier's Homecoming.

Washington, June 1.—The first ladies of the land—the wife of President Coolidge and the mother of Charles Lindbergh—will be under the same roof when Lindbergh arrives to receive the nation's homage.

Mrs. Coolidge today was preparing to send a simple invitation, as from one schoolma'm to another, to Mrs. Lindbergh, asking her to make the White House her temporary home while her boy is in Washington.

The two women, the one a former school teacher from Vermont and the other still teaching at Detroit High School, will be together when the latter's "boy" comes home after having flown alone across the Atlantic ocean.

USE CURFEW TO FOIL MOB

TROOPS GUARD JAIL FROM ATTACK AT TAMPA, FLA.

2 KILLED, 30 INJURED

Gas Bombs, Hand Grenades, Machine Guns Ready to Repel Men Seeking Confessed Slayer.

Tampa, Fla., June 1.—A curfew will ring here at 9 o'clock tonight in an effort to prevent further rioting at the Hillsborough county jail, where two persons have been killed and thirty injured in the last two nights.

Adjutant-General G. M. Coster, commander of state troops, defending the jail against mob attacks, issued the curfew order following a conference between military and city officials.

Gas bombs, hand grenades and more machine guns were added to the arsenal of national guardsmen and deputies defending the jail. Additional rope lines also were stretched around the jail to hold back enraged citizens bent on administering mob justice to B. F. Levins, confessed slayer of a sleeping family.

The whereabouts of Levins is a carefully guarded secret. Officers refused predictions concerning the possibility of another attack tonight but said they would be prepared for it.

Tallahassee, Fla., June 1.—National guard companies from four more towns were ordered to Tampa today by Governor John W. Martin. They will reinforce troops now guarding the jail.

Coast Guard Boats Move Down River

Vessels Recalled From Flooded Districts Will Await Developments at New Orleans.

New Orleans, June 1.—Coast guard boats used for flood relief were recalled to New Orleans today as the waters of the Mississippi river receded from the upper parts of the state.

The boats will move down river today and remain here to await developments in the lower Atchafalaya basin. If their services are found unnecessary they will resume coast patrol duty at Galveston, Texas.

Will Rogers, comedian, was accorded a noisy welcome when he arrived today to give a benefit performance for flood sufferers. Seat sales for the benefit have already exceeded $17,000.

Earth Disturbance Shakes New Jersey.

LINDBERGH TO CAPITAL FIRST

PLANS CHANGED AT PRESIDENT'S REQUEST.

TO SAIL ON CRUISER

Arriving Morning of June 11, Flier Will Receive Nation's Plaudits.—To New York Next.

Washington, June 1.—A special postage stamp commemorating the transatlantic flight of Charles Lindbergh may be issued by the Postoffice soon.

Postmaster-General New has received thousands of communications requesting issuance and it was said today he favors complying with them.

Washington, June 1.—A welcome befitting a Dewey or a Pershing will be given Captain Charles Lindbergh when he docks here June 11 aboard the fast cruiser Memphis.

President Coolidge announced today the youthful flier, honored by kings and commoners abroad, had accepted an invitation to sail aboard the Memphis from Europe and steam up the Potomac to receive a nation's plaudits, through the President, cabinet members, soldiers, sailors and citizenry.

The shift from the plans to bring him home aboard the destroyer Breck came after Lindbergh in London had received from the President's special cabinet committee an invitation to make Washington his first port of call. It was really the President's own invitation, a bid equivalent to a royal command.

New York Disappointed.

In accepting the presidential invitation, Lindbergh disappoints the metropolis, New York, which had planned to herald him with unusual honor. But President Coolidge, anxious to honor the daring flier, had set his heart on seeing Lindbergh before starting west on his Black Hills summer vacation.

To do this the Memphis was called into action. It can land him here June 11, two days ahead of the President's scheduled departure. Lindbergh was the guest of the President and, through him, of a nation, proud of his exploit.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur consulted President Coolidge after the announcement and later told the press everything would be done to get Lindbergh into Washington on Saturday morning the 11th, so the celebration could be accomplished that day. The three press associations will be permitted one representative each aboard the Memphis from Europe, he said.

To Fly to New York.

Reception details were turned over to the district commissioners of Washington who will cooperate with the cabinet committee. Lindbergh will stay only one day here. Late Saturday the 11th he will probably fly to New York, landing at Roosevelt field, whence he made his historic start for Europe.

St. Louis has waived her original insistence on being the first to honor him and it is assumed New York, after its first disappointment, will acquiesce in the arrangements, since from Saturday night on it can honor him as it chooses.

American Marines Ordered to Tientsin

Rapid Movement of Chinese Nationalists Toward Peking Causes Much Concern.

Shanghai, June 1.—United States marines commanded by General Smedley D. Butler were ordered north to Tientsin today. Butler will sail tomorrow with 1,800 men.

There has been considerable uneasiness regarding the safety of Americans in Peking owing to the rapid movement of the Nationalist armies toward the capital. Tientsin is the port of Peking and is about eighty miles from the capital.

William Geist, who has been a student at the Chicago Art Institute for two years, returned this morning to spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Geist. He will resume his art studies next fall.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today and Thursday, probably showers; not much change in temperature.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

NEIGHBORLINESS.

When L. C. Bender, a farmer living near Webster, S. D., found himself laid up in the hospital with no prospect of early release, and the spring rapidly passing, he disconsolately gave up all hope of getting his crops in. There wasn't a chance in the world. Anticipation of a cropless year retarded his recovery.

Bender, however, reckoned with his neighbors. Suddenly one day eighteen of them swooped down on his farm with thirty teams, fifteen seed-drills and a tractor, without saying a word to Bender about it, and plowed and seed that farm in almost no time. They made a good job of it. And they left word for Bender that they had done it as a testimonial of their appreciation of a good friend and neighbor. Now Bender will have a crop to harvest, and will probably be able to harvest it when the time comes.

There's still considerable neighborliness left in this hard old world, in the country and in the city, and the man who calls it forth is the man who himself is a good neighbor.

FLYING THROUGH AFRICA.

Speaking of air pioneering, let it not be overlooked that four planes of the British royal air force have just completed a notable flight of 11,000 miles, from Cairo to Capetown and back.

The flight is described as a success in every respect. The fliers carried out their program without a hitch. The engines ran perfectly and returned in such good condition that it is believed they could duplicate the voyage without overhauling.

Obviously this generation is breeding good airmen and making good motors.

That stretch between the tips of the African continent must be interesting to fly over. Two details of the airmen's report may interest Americans. They "found the roads in good condition everywhere, and saw many motor cars, mostly American, in Central Africa."

Also they passed over several herds of elephants. How long will those elephants last with airplanes droning overhead and elephant guns popping at them from the clouds?

Here is something that every town must look out for. Not only is every choice corner and desirable building lot in the business district being taken for oil stations, but those interested in oil and oil products are becoming so numerous that they will become a tremendous influence in shaping city governments.

Expected Wet Rush Fails at Windsor

Few Americans Take Advantage Of Canadian Liquor As Prohibition There Ends.

Windsor, Ontario, June 1.—Less than 200 persons, including not more than a half dozen Americans walked into government stores and began buying liquor when prohibition ended officially at 10 a. m. today.

Congressional Visitors Are "Almost" a Menace

"Folks From Home" Visiting Washington Sometimes Cash Bad Checks.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

Washington, June 1.—Congressional mail is fascinating material for exploration, but congressional visitors are almost a menace.

The only reason congressmen retain such mental faculties as they have is that there are secretaries to protect the congressmen and sometimes even stenographers to protect the secretaries.

But the worst pest or the most pronounced psychopathis case at times has such a plausible exterior that he gets into the inner sanctum and then it's the devil's own job getting rid of him.

These cranks include those who come in to ask the greatman to indorse a check. If he isn't there to put his name on the check himself, why his secretary will do very nicely. Often it's not good politics to refuse and the boys on the hill are not hardhearted when someone from the home state badly needs the money, but it is no rarity for these checks to come back.

The late Senator Ladd once lost $400 that way. The leader of an American Legion band is said to have cashed the check after obtaining Ladd's endorsement. Most members of Congress, however, will balk at taking a chance on such a large sum.

One senatorial secretary recently cashed a check for $65 for a young man from out near his home. Back came the check. It subsequently developed that the youth had spent $45 of the money talking over the telephone to a girl friend in the west that same evening. His mother finally made good.

Congressman Sol Bloom of New York has blossomed out as the government's super-salesman.

About March 15, Uncle Sam modestly put on sale one of the most important volumes published by the printing office for a long time. This was the code of laws of the United States of America, an indexed, complete compilation produced by act of Congress after many years of labor and research.

One lawyer says that this massive tome costs some $200 as available in annotated form from private publishers, but the government only charged the modest sum of $4.

Nevertheless, sales were sluggish until Congressman Sol grabbed hold of the promotion work.

Then the government printing office received more orders for the book in three days than it had in the preceding two months.

Germany leads the world in commercial aviation. The records of one German company during 1926 showed a greater volume of business than all the companies in France, which is second.

RUM SEEKERS TO GO THIRSTY

U. S. LAYS PLANS TO STEM FLOW FROM CANADA.

TO USE SHIPS, PLANES

"Prohibition Can Be Enforced," Says Ohio Customs Collector.—Big Force Promised.

Cleveland, June 1.—To stem the flow of rum which thirsty Ohioans are expecting from the liquor dampened shores of Ontario, federal prohibition officials are preparing to throw up a barricade of ships, guns, airplanes and men that will resemble the defending forces of a nation beseiged by countless hordes of enemy troops.

Here are some of the things Arthur Fenton, collector of customs for Northern Ohio, told the United Press his superiors in Washington have promised to help him keep his territory as dry as the Sahara:

Three hundred heavily-armed customs agents along the Lake Erie shore from Erie, Pa., to Toledo, O.

Three hundred undercover men in Canada to "tip off" coming invasions of rum runners.

Radio equipment to keep the "armies" on both sides of the lake in close liaison.

A fleet of fast hydroplanes to keep a constant patrol on the coast line.

Additions to the present coast guard fleet with heavier armament.

Fenton declared that each group of agents stationed along the lake front will be prepared for all emergencies in meeting any efforts of invasion by rum runners. The hydroplanes are to be equipped with rifles and machine guns. The bigger coast guard boats will carry one-pounders.

Cleveland will become one of the important bases for the summer campaign against smugglers. A base for one or more hydroplanes is contemplated at the exclusive Cleveland Yacht Club in Rocky River, a suburb.

"Prohibition can be enforced, if they supply sufficient men," Fenton said. "And I have been promised the men and equipment I deem necessary.

"I was with the army on the Mexican border. We kept the Mexicans from crossing the line down there. We can keep the rum runners from crossing the line up here. All that is necessary is to have sufficient force. Washington has promised me that force and I am prepared to show that prohibition can be enforced, so far as smuggling goods from Canada in this territory is concerned."

Fenton declared that narcotics and other smuggled goods will not be overlooked in the concentration upon the rum runners. He asserted that the enlarged force in this district will enable the government to keep stricter watch on smugglers of all kinds.

Musgrave of the First Christian Church read the single ring service in the living room. The bridal party stood under an arch covered with ferns and mock orange blossoms with huge baskets of pink and white peonies arranged most effectively on either side. The bride, who was given in marriage by her grandfather, R. B. Gex, sr., wore a beautiful gown of white georgette with a long train. The bridal veil was held in place with orange blossoms and her corsage bouquet was of sweet peas and Columbia roses. Beverly Gex, little cousin of the bride, scattered rose petals in the path of the bride. Little Billy Mills of Memphis, Tenn., another cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer and bore the ring in a rose. Preceding the service, Halbert Catterson, father of the bride, sang "Oh Promise Me" and John Gex of Graham, an uncle, sang "I Love You Truly," with Mrs. J. M. Donahoe, the former's sister, at the piano. Mrs. Donahoe and Mr. Catterson sang a duet, "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms."

Mrs. Robert Mills of Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Donahoe of Superior, Wis., aunts of the bride, presided at the serving table, which held the white wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, and pink candles. A pink and white color scheme prevailed in the floral decorations and the ice cream, cake and mints.

A WAR HERO HERE TODAY

CAPT. KILROY HARRIS, AUSTRALIA, LONG WAY FROM HOME.

IS NOTED LECTURER

5,000-Mile Trip On Horseback One Of Visitor's Achievements.—Writer Of "Kangarooland."

Probably the "farthest from home" visitor in Maryville today was Captain Kilroy Harris, D. S. O., M. C., F. R. G. S., F. R. C. I., Australian newspaperman, author, soldier and lecturer. With Mrs. Harris, he was an overnight guest at the Linville hotel.

A veteran of the World War, with several citations for gallantry in action, one would think the captain a hard man to stop. But when two tires on his automobile had punctures at the same time as he drove into Maryville last night, he was willing to call a halt. He and Mrs. Harris left this morning for Clarinda, Ia., to fill a lecture engagement. From there they will go to Council Bluffs, where Captain Harris will broadcast several travel talks during the remainder of the week from radio station KOIL.

Known For War Lectures.

Captain Harris is perhaps best known for his stirring war lectures in 1918, when, as an official war lecturer for the British and American governments, he spent six months in the United States, lecturing for the Red Cross.

He was wounded four times during the World War and gassed once. On four separate occasions he was decorated for gallantry in action, being awarded the Distinguished Service Order and Military Cross with Two Bars. He also received the Bronze Oak Leaf for "Mention in Dispatches," and the Victory Medal and British General Service Medal.

In 1915, Captain Harris was in the United States for six months on confidential work for the British foreign office. On his return to England from his second visit to the United States in 1918, he was appointed King's Messenger, a very high honor, and in that capacity he carried government dispatches all over Europe and to Ceylon and Australia.

Long Horse Back Trip

Captain Harris has traveled more than five thousand miles on horseback and an equal stretch in a one-horse buggy through the far interior of Australia. Both the captain and his wife have traveled extensively on horseback through the Canadian Rockies, belonging to the Order of Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies. Mrs. Harris was formerly a director of kindergarten work in Canada. At present the Harrises are on a four months automobile tour of the southern and western states, collecting material for American lectures in Australia and New Zealand, where they will be at the end of the year for more long horseback journeys.

Captain Harris is the author of three books on his native country—"Outback in Australia", "Something About Australia" and "Kangarooland," the latter published last January and adopted by several state departments of education as a supplementary reader. Mrs. Harris also has done considerable writing, chiefly about the Canadian Rockies.

The captain has written two war books, "A Book of the Great War" and "On War Work in America."

Originator of Travel Talks.

Captain Harris is one of the youngest members of the British Royal Geographical Society and life fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute. He is captain in the British Legion of Frontiersmen. The originator of radio travel talks, he has spoken from radio stations all over the country. He is said to have a larger radio audience than any other public speaker. He has traveled extensively in many of the out of the way parts of the globe—Australia, New Zealand, Fiji, South Sea Islands, South Africa, Europe, Mediterranean countries, Alaska, Canada and Yukon territory. He probably already has seen more of the United States than the average citizen sees in a life time.

Although Captain Harris maintains his residence in Australia, he maintains an office in Cleveland. He hopes to return to Maryville later for a lecture engagement.

Visit Friends Here.

While here, Captain and Mrs. Harris called upon Mr. and Mrs. Leno Allenbrand, 537 West Second street.

Mrs. Allenbrand's mother is a native of Australia, and Captain and Mrs. Harris visited her at King City before coming here. Mrs. Allenbrand was not born in Australia but visited the country with her parents when she was six years old.

Mrs. B. A. Jones and Mrs. H. A. Frawley of Parnell were in Maryville today. They came to meet the former's daughter, Miss Pauline Jones, who returned this morning from St. Charles, Mo., where she has been attending Lindenwood College.

Former Prosecutor's Wife Killed by Gas

Mrs. Florence L. Smith of St. Joseph Is Overcome While Preparing to Bake Cookies.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 1.—Mrs. Florence L. Smith, wife of DuVal Smith, former prosecuting attorney, was accidentally asphyxiated by gas in the kitchen of her home late Tuesday afternoon. She was found dead by Mr. Smith at 7 o'clock when he returned home after she failed to keep a dinner appointment downtown with him. She was seated in the gas-filled room with her head resting on her arms, folded on the table of the kitchen cabinet. Evidently she was overcome while preparing to bake some cookies.

Writes Poem About Lindbergh's Flight

"Hats Off to the Kid" Is Title of Tribute Written by Edgar F. Schilder, Known Here.

Edgar F. Schilder, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barmann of this city, had the following in the Post-Standard of Syracuse, N. Y., in its issue of May 22 under the caption "Hats Off to the Kid':"

We all said he never could do it,
And that he was foolish to try.
But he winked his left eye,
As he started to fly,
And remarked "Well I'll do it or die."

Through the night o'er the lonesome Atlantic,
His monoplane sped through the dark.
'Twas a hazardous thing he was doing,
But to him it was only a lark.

Over Ireland and England on schedule,
Till Paris at last hove in sight,
He sat at his post in the cockpit,
With the faith that his luck would be right.

And now that the feat is accomplished,
Our hats are all off to "The Kid"
Who trusted to luck and combined it with pluck
And said he would do it—and did.

Governor Pardons Two He Had Paroled

Restores Citizenship to Former Jamesport Banker and Former Tarkio Resident.

Jefferson City, June 1.—Full pardons carrying restoration of all citizenship privileges were issued yesterday afternoon by Gov. Baker to two former convicts he previously had paroled from the Missouri penitentiary. They were issued to Ivo W. Lively, former banker of Jamesport, Mo., and Fred Gowdy of Clarinda, Ia., formerly of Tarkio, Mo.

Lively was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary from Daviess County for receiving deposits in the Bank of Jamesport, of which he was cashier, when the bank was insolvent. His conviction was affirmed by the Supreme Court.

Baker paroled Lively Nov. 10, last, after he had served slightly more than 10 months of his sentence. The parole was urged by several bankers in Northwest Missouri.

The Penal Board letter sent to the Governor, recommending the pardon for restoration of citizenship was accompanied by a letter to the board from Leroy H. Kelsey, private secretary to the Governor, urging a recommendation be made. Kelsey, in writing to the board, said he was doing so for personal reasons "and in no wise connected with the administration." He said Lively was an old friend and urged the board to make a recommendation for a pardon as soon as it was convenient.

Fred Gowdy, formerly of Tarkio was convicted of receiving stolen property and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. The Supreme Court affirmed the sentence in 1924. Baker paroled Gowdy in December, 1925.

MAY WARMER THAN AVERAGE

TEMPERATURE LAST MONTH 1.2 DEGREES ABOVE TERM MEAN.

RAINFALL NOT HEAVY

Total for Thirty-One Days Only 1.88 Inches, While Average Is 5.76 —18 Days Clear.

Contrary to the belief of probably the greater part of Nodaway county residents, the May which closed yesterday was a warmer month than the average May in the thirty-three years during which J. R. Brink, official weather observer for Maryville, has kept his records.

Comments have been frequent that the month just closed had been unusually cold and lacking in sunshiny weather. Mr. Brink's records, however, show the mean temperature for the month to have been 62.3 degrees, while the term mean temperature is 61.1. Furthermore there were only thirteen cloudy days and eighteen were clear.

The lowest average temperature for any May was in 1907, Mr. Brink said today. This average was 55.6.

The highest temperature last month was 89, on the 23d. The highest on record is 96, recorded in several years. The lowest last month was 39 on May 4. The lowest May temperature on record is 25, recorded in 1907 and again in 1909.

Rainfall last month was far below normal, which may surprise some of the unofficial observers. The total precipitation was only 1.88 inches, as compared with a normal percipation of 5.76 inches. The greatest precipitation on record for May was 12.25 inches in 1896. The least was .64 inch in May, 1914.

PLAN 4 GOLF TOURNAMENTS

TWO-BALL FOURSOME TO BE HELD ON JUNE 12.

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN

Country Club Tournament Committee Announces Vacation And Championship Matches Later.

Four big golf tournaments for members of the Country Club this summer were announced today by the tournament committee of the Club.

The first of the tournaments is to be held June 12. This will be a two-ball foursome. Drawings will be made by the entire membership of the Country Club on or before June 9 and will be published in the June 10 issue of the Democrat-Forum and Tribune.

A prize will be awarded, but the tournament committee today had not definitely decided what it would select for a prize.

One of the other tournaments planned is a President's Tournament, to be completed by July 4. Three prizes will be awarded in this tournament, which will probably start a week before the Fourth of July.

An Annual Vacation Tournament will be held during August and the Championship Tournament will be held the latter part of September, according to the tournament committee's arrangement. More definite plans for these tournaments will be announced later. The championship tournament will probably be divided into two classes.

Blind Boone, Pianist Quits the Stage

Makes Final Appearance at Virden, Ill.,—To Live at Columbia, Mo.

Springfield, Ill., June 1.—Blind Boone pianist, ended his 47 years of public playing with a final appearance at Virden, Ill., last night, rounding out a career that has taken him twice through Europe and five times into every section of this country. Ill health, he announced, forced his retirement.

From the time of his first public appearance after leaving the School for the Blind at St. Louis, he was able to reproduce music from a single hearing. Carrie Jacobs Bond credited his reproduction of a piece she played for him at Janesville, Wis., when she was 14, with inspiring her to the further study of music that has raised her to prominence as a music writer.

The old pianist will retire to his home in Columba, Mo., which was also the home of the late John Lang, who was his manager 36 years. Lang's death is believed to have had a telling effect on Boone.

Warrensburg, Mo., was the scene of Blind Boone's first musical performance. There he organized his first orchestra, with a first and second mouth organ and first and second tin whistle, a triangle and tambourine.

Because of his accomplishments, residents sent Boone to the State School for the Blind at St. Louis. An attempt to teach him broom-making and other activities failed utterly. He had found the piano and would study nothing willingly but music.

FOR YOU GOLFERS!

When this is read you may think some of the members of the Country Club are getting rather chesty—or it may give you a big laugh.

Regardless, members of the tournament committee of the Country Club today challenged any set of men in town, bar none. This challenge means any class of business men, such as bankers, grocers, lawyers, physicians, or others.

The members of the tournament committee are Jack Costello, L. M. Eek, Ed Condon, Ed Dale, Forrest Gillam and Martin Lewis, jr.

His last appearance last night was with his niece, Mrs. Day, who sang some of his Negro spirituals. He also played "The Marshfield Tornado," his composition which has gained him wide credit.

Vatican En Fete Observed Pope's 70th Birthday Yesterday

Rome, June 1.—The Vatican was en fete yesterday to celebrate the 70th birthday of the Sovereign Pontiff, who has now occupied the throne of St. Peter for over five years.

Pope Pius XI enjoys excellent health, and to all who saw him yesterday, he appeared more like a vigorius man of fifty-five than one who has already reached the Bibilical span of three score years and ten.

The Pope's "little army" was practically mobilized for the occasion. The Swiss guard, in their picturesque uniforms with black and yellow stripes, designed by Michael Angelo, and never since altered, were on duty at an early hour, and the entire corps heard mass in groups of 10 to 15 at a time.

The Papal carbineers or gendarmes, dressed like the warriors of Napoleon's famous "old guard," with their large busbies and gleaming white top-boots, were drawn up for review in the quadrangle of the Pigna.

The Palatine guard, composed of members of the Roman middle classes belonging to traditionally Catholic families, who ancestors, in many cases, fought for the Papal cause in 1870, was largely represented.

The "noble guard," to which only members of Rome's "black aristocracy" can hope to gain admittance, were on special duty in the antechamber of His Holiness.

After the Pope had said his usual mass in his private chapel, which, according to tradition, is the death chamber of his predecessors, and had attended another mass said by one of his private chaplains, he began the series of receptions, which are customary on these occasions.

After receiving the congratulations of Cardinal Gasparri, Secretary of State, and certain members of the Papal household, Pope Pius XI admitted the members of the Pontificial "corps diplomatique" who during the course of the morning arrived in full ceremonial dress to offer their congratulations to His Holiness on the occasion of his birthday.

All of yesterday, from an early hour, numbers of congratulatory telegrams poured into the Vatican from all parts of the world, bearing the signatures of cardinals, archbishops, bishops, and pontificial legates all over the globe.

The Pontificial band, at full strength gave a concert in the courtyard of St. Damazus, which was attended by members of the Papal household and some privileged visitors from outside.

The ordinary clerical work of the Vatican was suspended for the day, and the children in the Catholic schools and convents enjoyed a holiday in honor of the occasion.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON, employes of the big T. Q. CURTIS department store, are taken into their employer's home as his wards for one year, because he wants to help them further ambitions which each has expressed. Billy, who wants to become a concert violinist, is the only one of the three that is serious, the others having lied to enjoy T. Q.'s generosity.

Billy is infatuated with DAL ROMAINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hired hostess of the Curtis home, but she is deeply troubled when she suspects that he is "playing" both her and Winnie Shelton.

Billy tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor, who has disinherited himself and is living in the Wells home in a poor part of town, working in the Truman factory by day and writing music at night.

The girls, unknown to T. Q., learn that he intends to adopt one of them when the year is up and to gain his affections, a series of intrigues, instituted by Nyda and Winnie and curiously involving Mrs. Meadows, Dal Romaine, and EDDIE BANNING, Nyda's chauffeur-sweetheart of department store days, turn the house into a hotbed of plotting and scheming.

Billy is disgusted with the whole thing and loses interest in her violin. Because she has a nervous breakdown, she leaves town for a month and believes in this time she has routed Romaine from her heart. Upon her return, however, she finds she is as much under his spell as ever. Thinking he would please Nyda, who has lied about her ambition to become a kindergarten teacher, T. Q. equips a model school in his home where two days a week Nyda teaches the children of the cook and housekeeper and twins of a wealthy neighbor couple. Reports of her unkindness and carelessness reach T. Q., and he spies on her one day to learn if this is true. The charges are confirmed. When T. Q. lets Nyda know of his presence in the room, she quickly becomes the interested, sweet teacher she has posed as being.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 44

The first Sunday in June the newspapers of Colfax carried front page stories which were destined to set the great Curtis department store into a ferment of excitement, jealousy and suspicion.

"Cinderella Girls off for Europe with T. Q. Curtis" was the way one paper blazoned the news. Another headline which caused T. Q. Curtis to wince stated boldly: "Modern Midas and foster daughters off for European jaunt."

The T. Q. Curtis party included the millionaire, Mrs. Meadows and the three girls—Nyda Lomax, Winnie Shelton and Billy Wells. After two weeks of pleasantly frantic shopping in New York they were on board a luxurious seagoing hotel, bound for Liverpool.

In that conference in the library, which T. Q. in his desolation of spirit had called for the purpose of outlining his suddenly conceived plan, he had explained his motive in giving them a summer in Europe.

"I feel that all of us need a change, that perhaps there has been too much work"—he glanced rather ironically at Nyda, Winnie and Billy, who flushed uncomfortably—"and too much Colfax in most of our lives. Here you are never allowed to forget that you are 'cinderella girls.' I want you to have travel to broaden your minds and your viewpoints. I know," he grinned wryly, "that that is an oldfashioned reason for going to Europe, but I have a feeling that if you girls can get away from Colfax, see the world that lies outside, learn other valuations than those which were given you, first by poverty and then by sudden luxury, you will be better able to cope with life after this year is up."

And so they went to Europe. It was a dazzling experience for all of them, but of the three Billy was the only one who had had a previous background of reading and education which fitted her to appreciate it. The three girls were drawn into a sort of armed-truce intimacy during the trip, for T. Q. and Mrs. Meadows discouraged their becoming too friendly with other tourists. Their very loneliness in strange countries brought them together as nothing else could have done. T. Q., a little lost and ill at ease away from the store, was wistful and gentle. Billy sometimes reproached herself bitterly for not having told him when she had accidentally learned his secret—that he intended to adopt one of the three girls when the year of probation was up. But it was too late now to tell him.

There were half a dozen adventures during the summer which threatened melodramatic consequences. On the boat going over, for instance, Billy saw Winnie in the arms of a man who was later exposed as a card shark. Nyda conducted a hectic affair with a charming, dissolute, young-old Frenchman, who trailed the party hopefully from Paris to Vienna, and from Vienna to Naples, but there he suddenly switched his amorous attentions to a fat, middle-aged American widow who was reputed to be worth many millions.

Billy herself did not escape the threat of romantic complications, for an apple-cheeked young Englishman pursued her, in a most gentlemanly but determined fashion, over half of Europe, finally abandoning romance for a more concrete excitement in Monte Carlo. Three days after the Curtis party left Monte Carlo Billy read in a London paper an announcement of his engagement to Lady Angela Struthers, a tall, honest-eyed, plain girl who had appeared not at all interested in the young Englishman's budding romance with the blue-eyed little American flapper when she had seen the two together in Paris.

During the course of the European tour, which extended over a period of four months, the millionaire department store owner took a naive pleasure in presenting his three lovely wards with bits of not too expensive but exquisite jewelry. In Paris he surprised and delighted them with platinum dinner rings, set with their favorite stones; a ruby for Nyda, an emerald for Winnie and a sapphire for Billy. The stones were neither large nor flawless, but the combined cost ran into thousands of the dollars which T. Q. had amassed with so much shrewdness and hard work. In Rome he added short strands of small but well-matched pearls. In Berlin he allowed them to choose tiny, beautiful wrist watches, studded with pin-point diamonds and chips of emeralds and sapphires. His pleasure in giving the things almost exceeded the rapture with which the girls received them.

And all during those enchanted four months the struggle between Nyda and Winnie, each to make herself more indispensable than the other to T. Q's happiness, did not abate. The odds from the first had been in Winnie's favor, for it was natural for her to cuddle and purr and cajole, and T. Q. was human enough to be flattered and touched by her unceasing attentions.

Billy, watching the tall, splendid, graceful Nyda trying the same tactics, was ironically amused and a little sad, for the role set so poorly on her shoulders. But it was not without a secret feeling of triumph that Billy realized that it was she who had become his real friend. It was Billy whom he chose as his companion for walks and tours of cathedrals and art galleries, for she was the only one of the three not too indolent or ignorant to take a genuine interest in sight-seeing. And she grew to love him during those hours of comradeship, not sentimentally or with much emotion, but to love him as if indeed he were a friend.

There were bitter quarrels between the three girls, of course, vulgar quarrels during which they hurled recriminations and accusations, for they could never quite forget that they were contestants for a tremendous prize. But in the main they were too busy and too excited by their new experiences to spend a great deal of time in quarreling, and no matter how hard they worked to gain marks of his special preference, not one of them had been able to break down T. Q.'s rigid impartiality.

The name of Dal Romaine was never mentioned between them, nor by T. Q. Curtis, but Mrs. Meadows spoke of him frequently to Billy, and the girl had the unreasoning conviction that she did not allow the other two girls to forget him either. Billy had agreed with Dal, on parting from him in Colfax, that it would be better if they did not try to write frequently.

"More heartaches and misunderstandings come out of a long-distance correspondence than could ever be explained away," he had told her practically, while his eyes and voice caressed her. "But—I will not let you forget me."

And he had kept his word. There were roses and a cablegram from him awaiting her in London; in Paris she received a long, whimsical letter, sparingly but thrillingly studded with terms of endearment. But her joy in it was almost destroyed when she saw an equally bulky envelope, with Winnie's name incribed on it, in those tiny, printed characters.

In Rome, a Hindu, fearfully and wonderfully garbed in his native dress, stopped her outside the Vatican one day and introduced himself as an intimate friend of Dal Romaine, with the added explanation that Romaine had instructed him to see her and give her a note from him. The two had tea together. Billy self-consciously aware of the intense interest of a number of American tourists, but enthralled with the tales which the high-caste East Indian told her of Romaine's life in India. The note was a short poem, written in Dal's copperplate characters, in a language which was utterly foreign to the puzzled girl. The Hindu translated it for her, smiling inscrutably into her eyes as he spoke the tender word of love which Dal had dedicated to her.

Billy was reading a long, affectionate letter from Constance Bradley one morning while the party sat at breakfast together on a hotel veranda in Florence:

"You really must hurry home, Billy dear. Old Colfax is positively seething with excitement. There is a most marvelous soothsayer or fortune teller or seer or clairvoyant—whatever you want to call him—who actually seems to 'see all, know all', as the vaudeville fortune tellers always claim. He is a thrillingly handsome and mysterious East Indian—by the way, had you noticed that Dal Romaine looks like a Hindu himself?—and he reads crystals with the most amazing accuracy. I'm quite frightened of him, but I keep going back—as everyone in our crowd does. The man must be making a fortune, for he is distinctly the vogue. Everyone goes to him—even the most conservative old mossbacks in town. Hurry on home and have your fortune told."

Billy stared at the letter incredulously. This from Constance! Constance who was so wise and cool and remote! Her heart was beating so heavily with a strange, terrifying excitement that it was almost a minute after he had spoken before she realized what T. Q. Curtis had been saying:

"Well, pack your duds, girls. I've got a cablegram from home. The store needs me. When can we be ready to sail, do you think, Mrs. Meadows?"

(To Be Continued.)

Billy learns that Clay Curtis is progressing wonderfully with his music, while she is standing still. In the next chapter she calls on the strange fortune teller.

Burlington Junction

(By J. Howard Thompson).

The Decoration Day services were held in the Ohio cemetery Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the Rolla Dicks Post of the American Legion, and were well attended. The Rev. J. Howard Thompson, pastor of the Methodist Church in Burlington Junction, gave the address. There were people present from the states of Washington, California, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri. Many from Maryville were present.

Miss Anna Walker returned home last Sunday night, after visiting more than two months in Oklahoma and Texas. While gone she visited Miss Marie Faust, formerly of Burlington Junction, but now of White Deer, Texas. She left Burlington Junction early in March.

The writer attended the dinner given by the cemetery association of Quitman, given by the association, on Monday at Quitman. There was a very large crowd present, many of them going from Burlington Junction and community. It was estimated that 200 attended the dinner.

W. W. Jones, who recently bought the Moses Hahn farm of seventy acres, lying just west of Burlington Junction, and just across the road east of a tract of land, he already owned, has had a ditcher at work letting the water out of a large pond on the northwest corner of the farm.

Frank Dwyer, jr., who is employed in a garage at Clearmont, with James Shores, formerly of this place, came Saturday night and spent the time until Tuesday morning with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dwyer here in town.

The Rev. J. Howard Thompson was in Quitman and Sharp's Grove, Monday and Tuesday of this week, assisting the Rev. John Fanning of the Methodist Church of that town, in the canvass for funds for Missouri Wesleyan College, a church school located at Cameron.

Loren Smith has disposed of his cleaning and pressing establishment to C. W. Thompson, who will conduct the business this summer. When school opens in September, he will secure a man to look after it for him.

Mrs. Jesse Merritt was hostess to the Country Culture Club at her home, six miles southwest of town, last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. John Greeley was the leader for the afternoon and chose for her subject, "Magazines and Their Writers." Magazine articles were discussed by Mrs. Phil Corken and Mrs. Hubert Corken. Mrs. John Greeley and Mrs. Phil Corken were chosen as delegates to represent the club at a farm bureau meeting held in Maryville May 27. At the close of the program refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Orba Merritt and Miss Helen May Corken. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Greeley, June 8.

Burlington Junction is to be host of 125 members of the Chamber of Commerce of Kansas City, on June 21. It is said this will be the first trip this group of Good Fellowship Trippers will have made here. Forty towns and cities are to be visited on this trip.

The writer visited Mr. and Mrs. Ed Riggle, living in the Swan Chapel neighborhood, south of Maryville, last Monday afternoon. The writer was their pastor while living at Graham twenty years ago. Mrs. Riggle is making her home with her son. She is in her 97th year.

Mrs. J. G. House and daughter, Celeste, were visitors in Afton, Ia., last week, returning home the latter part of the week. Afton was formerly their home.

Mrs. Howard Barnts and the children have come from their Nebraska home and with Mr. Barnts are comfortably located in their new home in the east part of town, recently vacated by Judge and Mrs. Charles Walker. Mr. Barnts is employed in the Ford salesroom and garage.

Don't forget the big special services and basket dinner at the Methodist Church next Sunday. Good preaching, good fellowship, and good eats will be the order of the day. You are invited.

Mrs. Wallace and daughter, Erline, were in St. Joseph last Thursday, where they went to meet Dr. Wallace and accompany him home. Dr. Wallace had been in Kirksville with a patient, Mrs. Dick Garrett, of Clearmont, who had gone there to have a goiter removed.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Garrett of Clearmont were in town Sunday, visiting their many friends.

We learned Monday at Quitman, while meeting many people from out of the county and state, some of them long distances away, that the Burlington Junction items are widely read. They are read with interest wherever the paper travels. Congratulatory letters have come to the writer's postoffice box, from Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Washington and California.

Miss Cynthia Faust, who lives seven miles southwest of town, attended church and Sunday school in town last Sunday for the first time in many weeks, largely because the roads and weather have been in such a condition that hitherto it has been almost impossible for her to make the trip to town.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Good are entertaining a nephew of Mr. Good, and his family, J. H. Good of Greenville, Tenn. In a few days the latter Mr. Good, with his family will go to Denver, Colo., where they will visit for some time.

A ride of several miles through the western and southern part of the county recently, revealed the fact that most of the corn is now planted, with here and there a field having developed sufficiently to begin cultivating. We saw a number of fields which looked very promising.

The Methodist people are planning a great day next Sunday, with services both morning and afternoon, and a basket dinner following the morning hour. Dr. E. L. Robinson, the district superintendent, will be the preacher for the morning, and the Rev. W. S. Woodhull, of Maryville, will speak in the afternoon. The third quarterly conference of the year will be held in the morning, just preceding the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Weymer Graves will entertain at their home in the west part of town tonight in honor of J. Lloyd Wilson, who are here from Puyallup, Wash. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Graves are cousins.

The members of the county court were in Burlington Junction last Saturday inspecting the right of way for the new survey on road No. 18 and interviewing the property owners along the way. No definite announcement will be made until after the court meets next Monday.

Jerry Jones, who with his wife has been in Compton, Cal., since last November, is expected to arrive in Burlington Junction for the summer, some time this week. His stay will only be temporary, however, as he plans to spend the remainder of his winters in Southern California. He and his wife recently celebrated their sixty-seventh wedding anniversary at the home of one of their daughters in Compton. Mrs. Jones did not accompany him on this trip east.

Mrs. Harriett Webb, who has been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Booher four miles east of town, since the death of another daughter, Mrs. Peter Cornell, with whom she made her home, left Sunday afternoon for St. Joseph for an indefinite stay with another daughter, Mrs. Lottie Hobbs. Mrs. Webb is one of the pioneers of northwest Nodaway County, having lived here nearly all her life. She is now past 89 years of age, but in a fine state of health.

Wilson Out of Hospital.

Claude Wilson, an employe of the Maryville Electric Light & Power Company, who fell thirty feet to the ground when a snap on his pole belt gave way Friday, was released from the St. Francis Hospital Monday afternoon and was able to be up town today.

Mrs. George Coler and her daughter, Mrs. Harley Hughes of Albuquerque, N. Mex., are spending the day in St. Joseph.

W. A. Blagg went to St. Joseph this morning on business.

LINDBERGH SHOWED TRAIT IN GRANDFATHER'S DENTAL OFFICE.

TRAIT IS INHERITED

Both Grandfather and An Uncle Known as Inventors—Modesty His Mother's.

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
(Copyright 1927 by United Press).

CHAPTER II.

Captain Lindbergh began his flight to Paris in a dentist's office in Detroit.

He didn't know it then, for he had only heard about men flying in those days, but nevertheless it was while playing with the motors and the tools of a dental shop and an experimenter's laboratory that he laid the foundation for his supreme accomplishment.

The dental office was that of Dr. C. H. Land, his maternal grandfather. Just as clearly as his heritage of courage can be traced back through his paternal ancestry, his flair for mechanics, his urge to try anything new, and his great modesty can be traced back to his mother.

Dr. Land was quite fond of his grandson and extended to him the particular privilege of visiting his dental office and permitting him to give that youthful "help" the value of which any mother of such a child can appreciate as he himself went on with his researches.

Dr. Land was born in Ontario, descendant of one of the founders of Hamilton, Ontario, but he was raised in Brooklyn and New York, studying dentistry in Brantford, Ontario, under Dr. J. B. Meacham. He practiced for a time in Chicago and then came to Detroit. His wife, Evangeline Lodge was the daughter of a Detroit physician.

Of Experimental Turn.

Just how well defined is the experimental turn which is part of Charles Lindbergh's inheritance, can be seen from the fact that in his Detroit office Dr. Land perfected the process of using porcelain for filling teeth, invented a gold inlay system and developed other revolutionary dental methods, writing in 1875 and again in 1911 books on dentistry which are known throughout the profession.

But dentistry was not the only thing to which Dr. Land turned his inventive genius. He perfected and patented such things as incandescent grates for furnaces, gas and oil burners.

"His gas jets have never been bettered," his daughter, the mother of Charlie Lindbergh maintains.

"Undoubtedly Charles first became fascinated with machinery in my father's office," Mrs. Lindbergh said in telling of her son's boyhood.

"My father had a suite full of curious appliances, wheels, pulleys, belts, levers and such. He used to take Charles to his office and Charles would spend hours watching and tinkering with the machines."

An uncle of Lindbergh's is the inventor of a truck trailer now widely used and manufactured in Detroit. With such a heritage and foundation it was but natural that Charles Lindbergh turned to motorcycles, then built a motor-driven ice boat, took up airplanes and when he had exhausted everything else that was in the flying profession decided to fly to Paris.

Modesty From Mother.

As to his modesty, the very quality makes it difficult to go into details, for Mrs. Lindbergh herself has the quality as strongly defined as her son. "He takes some of the possibly more deep-seated instincts from his father," she said.

"I have learned many lessons from my boy. His flying was all his own; I had nothing to do with it and never sought to interfere.

"All the credit is due my boy and I don't want to take it from him," Mrs. Lindbergh answered reporters who besieged her to tell them how it was that she raised Charles into such a man at 25 years of age, as he has proved himself to be.

When messages of congratulation poured into her home Saturday night and Sunday after the Paris flight she commented that "it all shows how much people are thinking of what he has done.

"Friday, I was unknown and now I am receiving messages from the great men of the world," she said again. "But it is all due to Charles."

One may search through all that has been said of this remarkable woman who kept on teaching her chemistry class while her son was flying to fame and the researcher will find nothing in which Mrs. Lindbergh claims any fraction of a mother's share of credit for herself. It all goes to Charles.

Curly Locks Worry Him.

But here is a family secret. His mother admits that Charles inherited from her side of the house, the curly, blonde hair which so graces him and into which many a flapper would like to twine her fingers. An uncle of Captain Lindbergh has hair of which Charles locks are the duplicate.

If there is one thing that the hero of the New York to Paris flight fears, it is this curly hair. It worries him continuously. He has tried every means of keeping it straight, but it simply won't behave. His friends agree that on rainy days Lindbergh is most apt to be out of sorts and irritable, because damp weather makes his hair curl.

That seems to be about the only skeleton in the Lindbergh closet.

DERBY WINNER SETS RECORD

FRANK CURZON'S CALL BOY TAKES ENGLISH CLASSIC.

ROYALTY IS PRESENT

Captain Lindbergh Also Among Crowd of Half Million Watching Horse Achieve Immortality.

Epsom, England, June 1.—Frank Curzon's Call Boy won the derby today in record time while thousands of enthusiastic spectators, including the royal family and Captain Charles Lindbergh, watched the horse achieve immortality.

Call Boy was the favorite. His time was 2 minutes, 34 2-5 seconds. The best previous time was 2 minutes 34 3-5 seconds. Call Boy won $60,575 for his owner.

Epsom, England, June 1.—The Derby, greatest of horse races, and the talk of the world for weeks, will be run off today on the historic track on the downs.

A record number of 349 valuable youngsters were entered for the great event before they reached their first birthday. Th best of these will run today over the Derby track of slightly more than 12 furlongs for a prize of approximately 8,000 pounds ($40,000). It cost 100 pounds ($500) in entry fees for each of the three-year-old cracks that now carried silk, many of whom have been guarded and tended for weeks past by detectives and faithful stablemen.

The annual trek to Epsom downs began over a week ago. Early Sunday morning scores of gypsy caravans were seen slowly wending their way to the scene of the greatest sporting festival. With them came the vanguard of the racing army; a motley crowd of bookmakers and their attendants, touts, tipsters, besides toughs and beggars, and a whole army of workmen.

Thousands Camp Overnight.

From an early hour this morning the expansive downs presented a scene of great activity and preparation for the expected multitude. Thousands who encamped overnight were early astir watching the horses cantering for the morning, pipe-opener. Streams of vehicles of all sorts commenced to arrive fetching loads of enthusiastic people. Viewed from the top of the newly-constructed grandstand every road for miles around had the appearance of a rigid crocidile. Airplanes equipped with wireless apparatus cooperated with thousands of policemen in controlling the enormous traffic, comprising motor coaches, private motors, taxis, omnibuses, horsedrawn coaches, brakes full of jovial working men well supplied with beer in bottles or gallon jars. Anything and every conceivable type of vehicle was pressed into service for the occasion.

Shortly before racing commenced the hoisting of the royal standard over the grandstand signalled the arrival of the King and the royal party. An outburst of cheering greeted his Majesty as he stepped into the royal box in the centre of the stand. By now the whole area of the downs was black with people and vehicles. The enclosures were chock-block full; whilst on the open ground bordering the track a crowd of huddled humanity thousands deep extended from Tattenham corner to the paddock beyond the winning post nearly a mile in length. Various estimates put the attendance in the neighborhood of half a million.

Huge Sums Change Hands.

Tea and coffee stalls providing liquids all hot at two-pence a cup, and piled up with buns and sandwiches; soda fountains, stewed eels and cockles stalls; besides large refreshment tents selling excellent beer from barrels at sixpence a glass catered for the hungry, thirsty, boisterous, holiday-making masses.

The result of the Derby is feverishly awaited by millions of bettors and sweepstake holders. Huge sums are annually invested in monster sweepstakes throughout the world. The biggest of these is run by the Calcutta Turf Club, which may pay anything up to a hundred thousand pounds to the holder of the winning horse. In the London Stock exchange this year members and their friends subscribed 250,000 pounds toward a pool on the great classic event.

The animal that wins the Derby puts the seal of fame on its career as a racehorse, and may bring in a small fortune in stud fees to its proud owner. To all intents and purposes the winning of the Derby is the finish of a horse's racing career, but the real value to the owner only just begins. Winners of such big races as the Derby, the Two Thousand Guineas, or the St. Leger seldom race for more than three years. The value of such winners is much greater at the stud than the stakes to be won on the race track.

Established Under George 3rd.

The race was established in the reign of George 3rd and was given the name of the Derby after the Earl of that period. Since then the race has taken place at Epsom except during the war when a substitute race was run at Newmarket. In early years it was not an event of great consequence attracting only a few subscribers.

In the course of a long career the race has produced all manners of results, including the successes of popular favorites and despised outsiders, but only on two occasions have there been deadheats. Once a horse called Running Rein won, but was disqualified when the authorities discovered the animal was a four-year-old named Maccabeus. The year 1913 witnessed another sensational happening. The favorite Craganour which finished just in front of a 100-to-1 horse Aboyeur was deprived of the prize by the stewards of the meet on their own initiative. It was generally admitted to be a bumping finish but opinion differed as to whether Craganour was the greatest culprit. It was altogether a remarkable Derby as, apart from the disqualification, a horse carrying the King's colors was brought down by a suffragist at Tattenham corner, who sustained fatal injuries.

The race is run on one of the worst tracks in the country. It is most favorable to the idiosyncracies of the rogue, and Tattenham corner is not only dangerous but also allows good and bad luck to play too prominent a part in the racing blue riband.

The life expectancy of the Average American is 55.31 years, according to insurance statistics.
